DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF WASHINGTON COUNTY

VOLUME VI.

SPRINGFIELD, KY., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1910.

NUMBER 12

DEATH COMES TO LEE PARROTT

One of Our Best Men Dies at Hendersonville, N. C., of Pneumonia.

The people of this county have not been called upon for a number of years to mourn a sadder death than that of Mr. Lee Parrott, who passed away at Hendersonville, N. C., Thursday, February 17, 1910.

Mr. Parrott had suffered for some time from tuberculosis, and in December, with the hope of benefitting his physical condition, he went to North Carolina, where he remained until the time of his death. A few days before his death Mr. Parrott contracted pneumonia, which, because of his physical debility, he was unable to fight with any effect. As soon as it was discovered that Mr. Parrott's condition was critical his family was notified, and his wife, accompanied by Dr. J. C. Mudd, left immediately for the South. Mr. Parrott died however before Mrs. Parrott and Dr. Mudd left, but because of the telegraph wires being down they could not be notified. While Mrs. Parrott was speeding South to her husband's bedside, as she thought, his remains were being conveyed to Kentucky, reaching here Saturday. Mrs. Parrott was compelled to go to Hendersonville before she knew that her husband was dead.

Mass for the dead was said by Father Hennessy Monday morning and the body was buried in St. Dominic's cemetery.

Lee Parrott was one of the best men in Washington county, being honest and industrious, a kind husband and father and a true friend. He was about thirty-six years of age and was the son of the late Richard and Mrs. Mary Parrott. Twenty odd years ago he was married to Miss Willie McIntire, youngest daughter of the late Judge McIntire, and to them a large family of children was born. Mr. Parrott's mother, his wife, several brothers and sisters and ten children survive.

In addition to these loved ones Mr. Parrott had many warm friends who are deeply and sincerely grieved at the sad taking-off of a true friend and good citizen.

JOSEPH MATTINGLY

A Splendid Young Man Dies of Pneumonia Sunday Last.

Joe Mattingly, aged twenty-three years, and the oldest son of Mr. Robt. Mattingly, died at his home about four miles from Springfield, Sunday, February 20, at 2 p. m. Mr. Mattingly had been in good health until the Monday preceding his death, when he was forced to go to bed suffering from pneumonia. Until Saturday night the malady confined itself to one lung but at this time began to affect the other as well, with the result that in less than twenty-four hours the end came.

Mr. Mattingly was a splendid young man of fine character and exemplary habits. About a year ago he married Miss Yankey, the daughter of Mr. Frank Yankey. Mrs. Mattingly survives her husband.

The deceased was buried Tuesday morning from the Baptist church, of which he was a firm and consistent member. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. H. Williams and were attended by a large crowd of friends of the deceased.

PORK CHOPS SKY HIGH.

The $10 Hog Nearing Completion And It Is Thought Will Soon Be Ready for Market.

Another high record for hogs was reached at the Bourbon Stock Yards this morning when tops brought $9.55 per hundred pounds. This is an advance of 5 per cent. over yesterday. Other grades were unchanged.

There were only ninety-five hogs on sale, despite the prevailing prices. This is an unusually small number even for a Tuesday, the fullest day of the week. Other markets were correspondingly strong, and that the $10 hog will become a reality in the course of a few weeks is the general opinion.

Of course the higher the price for the hog the higher the price the butcher must get. Pork chops at 20 cents per pound are up 25 cents as compared with last week and are only a few cents below the price for porterhouse steak. Spareribs at 15 cents are up 2 cents from last week, tenders at 35 cents are up 5 cents, and brains at 15 cents are more than double the price of a week ago.—Tuesday's Louisville Times.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Of Several Kentucky Counties Organizing Corn Clubs For Benefit of Pupils.

The pupils of the public schools in several counties in Kentucky have organized "Corn Clubs," the object of which is to study the scientific cultivation of corn. The clubs are under the patronage of the school officials in each county, and a prize of $25 is to be given to the club member who grows the most corn on an acre of ground during the coming season. Seed corn will be distributed among the members, and the methods of seed selection, germination, testing, cultivation, and all other essentials of a first class crop will be fully explained in lectures to the club members by competent men. These clubs are manifold in their benefit. It gives the boys an incentive to put some of their surplus energy into work instead of football and like useless sports; it fosters ambition by arousing the spirits of competition among them, and gives them a liking and interest in farm life, besides raising the work from mere tilling of the soil to a scientific basis and into a class with the "professionals" which lure so many young men from the farm. Kentucky, is mainly agricultural, and scientific farming means getting the best out of the soil, which puts the most money into the farmers' pockets. It would be a good thing to start a Corn Club in Washington county.

Holtshouser-Thompson.

Miss Roxie Holtshouser, formerly of Lata city, and Mr. Jack Thompson, of Knob Creek Stock Farm, were married in New Orleans last week. Miss Roxie had her home in New Orleans for some time, where she was engaged in trained nursing—She is one of the most deservingly popular young ladies who has ever gone out from the old Kentucky home, her friends here are legion, and join in and wishing her, all happiness and prosperity. Mr. Thompson is a genial whole-souled gentleman, whom everybody likes, one of the kind who is bound to succeed and he does.—Bardonia Standard.

Mr. Thompson is well and favorably known in Springfield, having made frequent visits to her cousin, C. L. Price and family.

COMMITTS SUICIDE

Lyle Commerse, Formerly of This Place Ends His Life at Portland, Ave.

"I am tired of living. Don't forget to put my picture in the paper. Good bye."

With these words Lyle Commerse, formerly of 415 West O. street, this city, drank a quantity of carbolic acid in a saloon in Portland, Ore., last night, and died before medical aid could reach him. Commerse, who went by the name of Harry Sullivan in Portland, left a note in which he stated that he has a mother and five sisters in Louisville, and that he is a deserter from the United States Army.

Commerse was a baker by trade. He had been in Portland, Ore., for several months. It was stated at the saloon where he committed suicide that he had run into the place to escape a policeman to whom his actions appeared peculiar. He left his photograph on a postcard, and the following note:

"I am tired of living. After I am gone please put my picture in the paper. I am a deserter out of the army. My right name is Lyle Commerse, of Louisville, Ky. I have a mother and five sisters in my home town. Good-bye."
"HARRY SULLIVAN."
"P. S.—Don't forget to put my picture in the paper."

Commerse is survived by five sisters, who live with an aunt at 515 Fifth Street. The family had moved from O street to 3020 South Fourth street, where the mother died three months ago. At the time of her death the son's whereabouts were not known, and it is not believed that he was ever aware of her death.

Commerse was about twenty-four years of age. He was always of a wandering disposition, and enlisted in the army five years ago with a number of companions. He was stationed at a barracks in the State of Washington, and when last heard from was in Vancouver.—Evening Post.

Lyle Commerse formerly lived here with his parents, and is well remembered by his friends. His father was formerly a contractor and builder of this place.

His mother, who died last November, was brought here for burial in the Bethlehem Cemetery.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

Celebrated by Pupils of Graded School Last Evening.

The Literary Society of the Graded School celebrated Washington's birthday by holding an open session at which ten of the students debated and members of Miss Martin's class gave vocal and instrumental selections. The subject of the debate was, Resolved: That women should be given equal political rights with man. The affirmative being taken by Chas. Hayden, Chas. Bottoms, Ben Simms, Walter Royalty, and Fred Mays and the negative by Rickets Bowlsaver, Connor Williams, Albert Crawford, Albert Mays, and Wallace Rogers. Each debater spoke well and earnestly argued his point, making it difficult for the judges to reach a decision. After considerable deliberation the judges, Mrs. W. D. McElroy, Chas. McChord and Marshall Duncan decided in favor of the affirmative. A large crowd was present who were enthusiastic in their praises of the young speakers and musicians.

Did It Ever Occur To You?

Did you ever plan and figure how you would economize
Till you saved a payment on a house and lot?
Did you ever scheme and dream of how bulky it would seem
Just to own a little home and garden plot?
Sure you have! But when you started out to save a little bit
Didn't you observe the trusts were quickly wise
To the fact and quickly act till your pay check they had cracked
Making you pay prices to the skies?

Did you ever plan a journey to the scenes of youthful days
And plan out just how to meet the small expense?
Did you ever say "To-day I will save some of my pay,
Even though it is no more than fifty cents?"
Sure you have! But ere you sailed down that little "half-a-bone"
Some protected "infant" scented it afar,
And by simple twist of wrist had your money in its fist,
Then laughed at you for the sucker that you are.

Did you ever say, "On pay day I will start a bank account,
And will lay aside each week a little sum?"
Did you ever get there yet without worry, fuss and fret
Over food and clothing bills that always come?
Sure you have! But ere your bankbook had a thumbprint on its side
Or a fortnight had gone gliding o'er your head,
Tighter grew the screw and you were made sad and mighty blue
By a notice: "Your account is in the red."

Did you ever have it figured how next month you could start out
Even with the world and wholly out of debt?
Did you ever grin and spin out the store grown so thin
Of how you would save a lot of money yet?
Sure you have! You're not the only dreamer of such sunny dreams—
Every one of us has played the part of chump—
To awaken much mistake with our nerves wrought up and shaken
By the way the trusts have given us the bump.—The Commoner.

GROWERS INDICTED.

Charged With Interfering With Interstate Tobacco Shipments by Threats.

Cincinnati, Feb. 18.—Twelve tobacco growers of Fry Ridge, Ky., were indicted in the Federal court in Covington Ky., yesterday for alleged attempts to interfere with interstate shipments of tobacco by threats of violence against the shipper, W. T. Osborn, on November 26, 1907.

The indictments charge that after Osborn refused to withdraw four horse-heads of tobacco from the custody of the Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific railroad, to which they had been entrusted for shipment outside the State, the men went to O. G. Ramsey, agent of the railroad, and tried to make him turn over the shipment to them or return it to Osborn. The object is declared to have been to compel the grower to pool his tobacco instead of selling it to concerns outside Kentucky.

Among the men indicted is John S. Steers, a member of the Kentucky Legislature.

The Judge's charge to the jury was brief, but very broad, and embraced allegations of violations of the interstate commerce laws. The Judge called attention to the United States laws regarding interstate commerce, and stated that he understood United States agents, who had been secretly at work in the tobacco districts of Kentucky, would furnish evidence of conspiracy, and if such evidence was forthcoming, to indict any whom the evidence implicated. He stated there was but one case for the jury to consider, that of violations of the interstate commerce acts.

Assistant Attorney General Grosvenor was present from Washington to assist the jury. Almost a dozen secret agents of the government, who had been working in the tobacco districts of Kentucky, were in the court room when Judge Cochran gave his charge, and it is understood each will give testimony before the jury. These men had been working in Kentucky several weeks, and maintained headquarters at the Havlin Hotel, Cincinnati, in charge of W. H. Hoagland, of Washington.

TO ORGANIZE OHIO COUNTIES

Mr. W. H. Patterson to Push Work of Canvassing the Buckeye State With Pledges.

Plans are now being made to push the work of pooling the Burley tobacco crop of Ohio and to add several counties of that state to the territory now controlled by the Burley Tobacco Society, says the Lexington Herald.

The preliminary plans for the organization of the tobacco raisers were made Tuesday when Mr. W. H. Patterson of Pike county, Ohio, and President Clarence LeBus of the Burley Society, held a long conference in the latter's office. Mr. Patterson arrived in Lexington Monday afternoon and called on Mr. LeBus and officials of the Burley Society.

Mr. Patterson is a prominent farmer in his county and owns several large farms on which he grows Burley tobacco. He told Mr. LeBus that the effects of the Burley Society's work had been felt in Ohio and that the farmers there were anxious to join any pool which would increase their earning capacity. He, therefore, came here asking what steps should be taken for the organization of the growers and received instructions from the local office.

Mr. Patterson left for his home Tuesday evening, after having received the assurance of Mr. LeBus that he would be given any assistance in the pooling of the tobacco that the society might be able to lend him.

Only four Ohio counties are now included in the Burley Tobacco Society's pool, but it is hoped that by the canvass which Mr. Patterson will make many counties containing thousands of acres of Burley tobacco can be added to the society's territory.

Mr. Patterson said that excellent white Burley tobacco is being raised in many counties of Ohio and that the farmers in that section are anxious to join the organization. He expressed himself as confident that he would have no trouble in getting the planters together and pooling fifty per cent of the tobacco during the coming year, eventually getting practically every acre of it.

The work of canvassing the Ohio counties, including Pike county, Mr. Patterson's home, will be begun as soon as possible. Mr. Patterson was pleased with the methods pursued here and will use practically the same plans in his Ohio canvass.

An estimate of the number of acres of tobacco likely to be included in the proposed Ohio pool could not be learned, but Mr. Patterson said that Pike and the surrounding counties were preparing to plant a larger crop this season than had been grown in many years.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Burley Society held Tuesday in the offices, accounts were audited and the tobacco situation discussed. No business other than routine was brought before the body, which will meet again this morning at 9 o'clock.

Good Tobacco Market.

The rainy and damp weather of the past week has brought tobacco in case and as a consequence a quantity of tobacco has been placed on the market here. Both houses have had all that they could handle with prospects of being crowded for several days. The weed has been bringing excellent prices. One of the best crops sold this week or as to that this season was four acres of tobacco raised by W. P. and Harry Grubbs which brought $150. The net average was 184 and the highest price was 27 cents per pound.

SENATOR BENJAMIN R. TILLMAN

Senator Benjamin Ryan Tillman, Senior Senator from South Carolina who last week stricken with paralysis and Aphasia, and whose life for a time was despaired of Senator Tillman is improving and his friends hope to see the pitch fork again carried into the Senate by him and the grafters implicated therein.

CIRCUIT COURT

Convenes Monday With Probably Largest Docket in Years.

Circuit Court will convene Monday with prospects of a longer term than has been held for some years. There are thirty-six cases on the appearance docket, twenty-four in equity and twelve in law. The criminal docket is also heavier than usual. There is one indictment for murder, that of Erastus Holiday for killing Tom Ward, set for trial this term, which several other felony, as well as a number of misdemeanor cases, are on the docket. Three men are now being held to the grand jury on the charge of murder and their cases will probably be the first passed upon by the grand jury.

Gen. Webb's Advice to Napoleon III.
That Brought About the Withdrawal of the French Troops from Mexico.

At the hour named in the emperor's telegram the latter, with all ordinary court etiquette dispensed with, greeted his old benefactor in the palace of St. Cloud. They met as old friends who stood upon an equality, and they were friends, for after Louis Napoleon had become emperor of the French, he had remembered and redeemed the money loans which Gen. Webb had made to him when he was an exile and since then an intimate correspondence had been maintained between the two.

"I am much distressed," said the emperor to his old friend, "that the presence of the French troops in Mexico should have been an irritation to your president and your people." (This was at the time that French bayonets were keeping Maximilian on the Mexican throne.) "My troops are not because I was anxious to conquer. I am like it a colony, only, but on account of political and domestic reasons in Europe," will say to you that I am ready and anxious to withdraw my troops, but I cannot do so under threat or compulsion. I have thought that you might suggest a way by which there could be an agreement between your president and myself, so that I can in self-respect and without appearance of coercion on the part of your country withdraw the troops."

Railroads' Sin of Omission

As general manager of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh, general superintendent of the Chicago & Northwestern, vice-president and general manager of the West Shore and vice-president of the Big Four system, the late James D. Layng, who died on Lincoln's birthday in 1908, was for years one of the country's leading railroad men and his 50 years as an active railroad man was almost coincident with the great railway development of the country.

"He said to me that he wished I would lend him one of our freight cars—any old car would do—because he had an idea which he thought might be worth while. He explained that he believed he could fix that car up so that it would be possible to transport poultry, fruit and other perishable objects and be sure they would

Gen. Webb, realizing that there was a possible way out of the great difficulty confronting the two nations—a situation that might end in an armed clash, unless delicately handled—agreed to lay the agreement before no one's eyes other than President Johnson's. Within a month or six weeks thereafter he did so, explaining to the president's ears only just how the agreement had come to be drawn. Immediately Mr. Johnson realized the importance of the agreement, expressed himself as being greatly gratified.

Seemingly, though not actually, frail, of slender physique, grizzily haired and gray bearded, with snowy white but unstarched linen, a dicky check and an old-fashioned cravat, low shoes and home knitted woolen stockings—such in the closing years of his life was the physical appearance and dress of John Thompson, the man whose name was known to every banker and storekeeper in the United States before the civil war as the author of "Thompson's Banknote Reporter," and to men of finance the world over from 1862 on as the creator of the national banking system.

of Omission

"That was the beginning of the refrigerator car. All that this man predicted it came true. But what did the railroads do about it—what did they see in this crude invention? Nothing—not even the great forces of the railroad world. They left it to the beef trust and the fruit trust to seize upon the idea. Those trusts built and own the refrigerator cars. But if all the railroads had built refrigerator cars of their own—had had plenty of them—then the beef trust, for example, would've been unable to bludgeon the roads into giving them subsidies for furnishing their own cars, under the pretext of sending their business elsewhere. And without subsidies given to them many of the trusts of to-day would not have come into existence. I am sure.

Mr. Layne paused for a moment and then said, "And," he continued, "I have always thought that if the railway management had had as good foresight as they now have hindsight they would also have anticipated the oil pipe lines along the rights of way, and the taxes would be and then it would have been impossible for the Standard Oil Company to have forced the roads into giving exclusive rebates—with the result that perhaps the oil pipe lines have been built and the Standard Oil Company as we now know it.

"It is indeed a great sin of omission that the railroads of the country have charged up against the Federal Government for not imposing a penalty—and they probably will continue to do so even into the third and fourth generation of the railroad managers who originally committed this great sin."

—The Night, 1906, by R. J. Edwards

drawn upon expected to arise. Gen. Alexander S. Webb, son of Gen. James Watson Webb, tells me that, so far as he knows, this bit of secret history of a famous event is now made public for the first time. And it may truly be said that the peaceable solution of this serious international problem of the late sixties had its origin in the befriending of the stranger exile Louis Napoleon, by Gen. James Watson Webb, 30 years before. Thus, strangely, is history sometimes made.

London.—The centenary of William Ewart Gladstone, who sat in the British House of Commons for 62 years, was celebrated recently. Gladstone, "the Grand Old Man" of England, was born in 1809 and died May 19, 1898. Up to the last days of his life he was fond of wielding an ax. On his estate at Hawarden he chopped down trees to beautify the landscape and often cut the trunk and branches up for fuel. He had special axes for his work and they are among the prized relics.

HE CALLS WOMEN SAVAGES

Chicago.—Prof. William I. Thomas, University of Chicago sociologist, who bravely stood up before 200 women and declared that woman's dress was a competitive affair which ruined the men and made the women clothes horses, has broken into the public prints before by advancing other ideas just as entertaining.

If Prof. Thomas had his way, what is left of the Indian braves of the United States reservations would be married to white belles right away. Prof. Thomas would draw the line in intermarriage with the negro only.

And then the professor has written a book, "Sex and Society," which caused quite a little stir because he declared that love, wonderful love, was only a myth, and that the ancient method of allowing a male person to hit a lady on the head and drag her off to his tent, bungalow, or than the American duck. Much better. Divverend dasse entirely. You be surprised at the imported tings the Bavarian people in New York ead. Nearly efferting we ead is imported. Our sauzege, our zauergrou, our vlounders, all our vish, nearly efferting tings we ead. We don't like the American tings to ead, we Bavarians. We like the tings from our own country.

Louisville, Ky.—While excitement as at fever heat among the many spectators at the trial of the three alleged conspirators in the local insurance cases, George D. Sparks, formerly a clerk of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, dropped dead upon the floor of the city court.

Williamstown, Ky.—The failure of the S. M. Smith Lumber Co., of Crittenden, this county, with branches at Dry Ridge and Corinth, leaves a string of creditors extending from Seattle, Wash., to Pine Knot, Ky., it is alleged. The assets of the firm are said to be $20,000, with liabilities amounting to $20,000.

Elizabethtown, Ky.—The Rev. Steve Holcombe, who has been conducting the Holcombe Mission in Louisville for several years, has abandoned the missionary field and has retired to "The Willows," his country residence, near this city. His retirement is due to advanced age, impaired health and millies ties.

Henderson, Ky.—The Evansville Bridge Co. has filed an agreement of consolidation and articles of incorporation in the county clerk's office here. The capital stock is $1,500,000, and the object is to construct a bridge across the Ohio river from Vanderburg county at some point at or near Green River island, for the use of railroads, vehicles, traction cars and foot passengers.

Winchester, Ky.—Winchester citizens held an indignation meeting to condemn the fake stories in the Lexington papers regarding the alleged "right rider" outrages charged to local farmers. Postmaster Perry presided and many business men pledged themselves to buy no more from Lexington wholesalers or retailers, and committees were appointed to see all the citizens and ask them to join in the boycott on the Lexingtonians. It was voted also to change the name of Lexington avenue to Fairfax street.

Louisville, Ky.—W. P. Roberts, night watchman at the Hydraulic Brick Co.'s plant, was found unconscious by a messenger boy. When revived he told a story of having been attacked and beaten by two negro thugs.

Louisville, Ky.—Evan S. Rees, of the Home tobacco warehouse, has enabled the British agricultural department declining an offer to go to Pretria, Africa, to take charge of a tobacco warehouse there and superintend the culture of tobacco for the government.

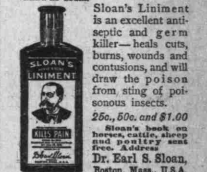

For Sprains

Sloan's Liniment is the best remedy for sprains and bruises. It quiets the pain at once, and can be applied to the tenderest part without hurting because it doesn't need to be rubbed—all you have to do is to lay it on lightly. It is a powerful preparation and penetrates instantly—relieves any inflammation and congestion, and reduces the swelling.

Here's the Proof.
Mr. L. ROLAND, Bishop of Scranton, Pa. says:—"On the 7th of this present month, as I was leaving the building at noon for lunch, I slipped and fell, spraining my wrist. I returned in the afternoon, and at four o'clock I could not hold a pencil in my hand. I returned home later and purchased a bottle of and used it five or six times before I went to bed, and the next day I was able to go to work and use my hand as usual."

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the Most Popular Because it is the Best.

"I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for the past eight years and find it to be one of the best selling medicines on the market. For babies and young children there is nothing better in the line of cough syrups," says Paul Allen, Plain Dealer, La. This remedy not only cures the cough, colds and croup so common among young children, but is pleasant and safe for them to take. For sale by The Leo Hayden Drug Co.

In Memory of Henry Noel.

Mr. Henry Noel, aged forty-three, died Sunday morning, Feb. 6, at 11 o'clock at his home a short distance from Mackville, after a lingering illness of tuberculosis. The funeral services were conducted from the Baptist church in Mackville Monday morning at 11 o'clock and the interment followed in Deep Creek cemetery.

Mr. Noel had been in failing health for several months and his family had known for some time that he could not recover, but he seemed as well as ever until four o'clock Sunday morning he grew worse and sank rapidly until the end. He was a devoted member of the Baptist church at Mackville and will be greatly missed from the membership of the church.

Deceased was known far and wide for his acts of kindness and charitable deeds and his death is deeply regretted by all who knew him, he being the last of his family, is survived only by his wife, Mrs. Francis Noel, who has our deepest sympathy in her hour of trouble.

Stomach Misery for Over Six Years

Think of it! After six years of sour stomach, of gas eruptions, of nervousness, during which time every meal lay on his stomach like a lump of lead, a man was restored to perfect health by Mi-o-na stomach tablets.

Read what Mr. Hoffman, landlord of the Webster Hotel, writes.

"I suffered misery and intense pain from stomach trouble for over six years, and all the doctoring that I did or medicines I used were of no avail until about two years ago, when I used a treatment of Mi-o-na. The first few days' treatment helped me greatly and upon using it a while I was made entirely free from any stomach trouble or complaint whatever. Since the cure by Mi-o-na I have regained my weight, I eat and sleep well, am never nervous, and my entire general health is much better."

—Max M. Hoffman, Webster, N. Y., Aug. 2, 1909.

Mi-o-na relieves stomach distress in five minutes. It acts like magic. It is guaranteed to cure sour stomach, gas eruption, heartburn, dizziness, biliousness and nervousness, or money back. For sale by druggists everywhere and by The Leo Haydon Drug Co. for 50 cents a large box.

HYOMEI

Wins Honors.

Messrs. Jack McChord and John S. McElroy Jr. who are taking a post graduate course at Central University and who since entering this institution have won any number of oratorical and debating contests, added another honor to their list last week by winning the Ernst debate. This debate was founded by Hon. Richard P. Ernst, of Covington, as a memorial to his father. Aside from the prizes which go to the winners of the debate, they represent the university in the June intercollegiate debate.

One of the Causes.

"If a housekeeper, instead of standing in front of a telephone to order (if family supplies, would go to market and learn which foods are cheap and just as good as the expensive kinds she has been ordering there will be less of this kind of talk," said James J. Hill, multi-millionaire, railroad builder and operator, in discussing the increased cost of living. "As I have said before," he added, "The high cost of living is the cost of living high." Like all men who have made their own fortunes, Mr. Hill believes in doing things personally instead of relying on others.
